Aspects of attached junior high school

Through practicing “human education” our school gives guidance aid to embrace the thoughts and wishes of the students with a sole focus on them.

We are actively working on the improvement of learning at home by linking home and school via the internet, and giving greater communication to homes through the use of email, etc.

Since the introduction of the two term system in 2003, students ability to learn in a more careful manner has continued to increase. This, in turn, has benefited the students socially promoting more out of school company with classmates.

Earthquake-resistant reinforcement work and renovation work of school buildings has finished and an environment where students can work with peace of mind is in place.
